

MARTIAL LAW IN BURNED CHELSEA

Militia And Marines Are On Guard To Prevent Possible Looting Of Ruins Left By Big Fire.

KNOWN DEAD NUMBERED BUT 3

This Morning Though It Was Feared List Would Be Increased Then Investigations Were Made-- Measures To Relieve 1,000 Sufferers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boston, Mass., April 13.—An area of 350 acres of blackened ruins representing nearly a quarter of the total area, marks the scene of the great fire which swept through the business section of Chelsea and East Boston yesterday and last night, turning 10,000 people out of their homes and entailing property damage estimated at $8,000,000. An apparently insignificant blaze which had its origin among the ruins on a dump, was fanned into a storm of fire, riding with a gale that blew from forty-five to sixty miles an hour, and within twelve hours 500 dwelling houses, the National Electric Co.'s factory, the Tidewater Oil Co.'s plant on the water front, library, city hall, five banks, thirteen churches, two hospitals, five schoolhouses, and twenty business blocks were destroyed. Two women who made an effort to secure some effects from their homes were burned to death and a half hundred were injured.

Flames Spread by Gale.
The fire originated in the rear of the Boston Blacking company's works on West Third street, near the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad and in close proximity to the Everett City line. A terrific gale from the northwest carried burning shingles, embers and myriads of sparks to a score of wooden buildings, most of them of cheap wooden construction. The fire started almost in the extreme southwest section of the city and cut a path to the end of Maverick street at the extreme southern end of the city, which borders on Chelsea creek. This is about one and a half miles from where the fire began. The flames spread through the heart of the retail business section, which was about midway between the two extreme limits reached by the fire.

Among the structures destroyed were 13 churches, two hospitals, the public library, city hall, five school houses, 20 business blocks, nearly a score of factories and upwards of 300 tenements and dwelling houses.

The Burned District.
The streets over which the fire rushed included Carter, Maple, Spruce, Arlington, Ash, Walnut, Poplar, Chestnut and Cherry, to Broadway. From Broadway the fire spread to Hollingham hill. From Summer street it cut another pathway, running diagonally across Third street, Everett avenue and Fourth street to Hollingham street. The flames reached Broadway, the principal street of the city, at a point between Third and Fifth streets, and destroyed the Massouk hall, Odd Fellows' hall and Bennett block.

The flying embers and the showers of sparks were carried across Chelsea creek to the East Boston district and the East Boston engines were obliged to return from Chelsea to protect property in their district.

Militia Guard Property.
A militia call by Mayor Deak of Chelsea brought out the first company, coast artillery, Capt. Renfrow commanding, in order to guard property moved into the streets from buildings in the paths of the flames. Col. Wood, commanding the reserves

SAN DIEGO PREPARES TO WELCOME THE BIG FLEET

Fleet Soon To Drop Anchor In United States Waters For First Time In Four Months.

San Diego, Calif., April 13.—Within the next twenty-four hours the United States fleet will drop anchor in the beautiful bay of San Diego, after a voyage unprecedented in naval annals. The ships will rest in United States waters for the first time in four months, during which time they traveled a distance of approximately 18,000 miles.

The ships are to remain here until Saturday, according to the plans mapped out by the navy department at Washington. The people of San Diego have completed elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of the officers and men. The main streets are gay with bunting, and the indications are that the decorations tomorrow will be among the most elaborate ever seen on the Pacific coast. Thousands of visitors are expected here to view the fleet.

Coronado, "the gem of the Pacific coast," will join with San Diego in furnishing entertainment for the naval visitors. It is intended to give the officers and men the time of their lives, and there will doubtless be such an outburst of genuine California hospitality as has never before been seen.

When the ships enter the landlocked bay of San Diego, a magnificent panorama hundreds of miles in extent will unfold before the eyes of the men. A high range of mountains forms the eastern horizon. In the foreground is the city of San Diego, with its beautiful environs, its semitropical vegetation. Situated on a plain but little raised above the level of the sea, nearly the whole of the city may be seen from the decks of the vessels. Tall buildings, spires of the cathedral, and, overlooking all, the Bennington monument, are the conspicuous features of the scene.

The bay or harbor of San Diego is thirteen miles long and has enough deep anchorage to float all the navies of the world at one time. The harbor is acknowledged to be one of the best in the world.

To the west is the high promontory of Point Loma, the top of which is nearly five hundred feet above the level of the ocean. From the harbor entrance, continuing to the south and forming the western boundary of San Diego bay, is the long and narrow Coronado peninsula, with its famous hotel and city of tents. The bar at the entrance to the harbor has been dredged to a depth of thirty feet at mean low tide, so that the largest ships can enter at all times, and there are no reefs, no sunken rocks, no treacherous currents. It is a matter of record that no vessel has ever been wrecked in San Diego bay. No matter how severe a storm may be raging on the bay or outside, the waters of the bay are hardly more than ruffled.

One reason why San Diego bay is a favorite resort with the officers of the Pacific fleet is because of the fine opportunities it affords to the men for drills both on water and on land. For this purpose there is said to be no place so well adapted on the whole American coast, east or west, as San Diego bay. Both in summer and in winter the weather is ideal, and there is never a day throughout the year when the men cannot practice on the water with comfort. So many advantages does San Diego bay offer in this respect that many of the highest officers of the navy have expressed themselves strongly in favor of the establishment of a naval training station here.

The city of San Diego is laid out with fine broad streets and avenues, and beside these are magnificent boulevards extending into the country. A coast road from San Diego to Los Angeles is very popular with automobilists. Within the heart of the city is the Plaza, lined on all sides by tall palms. At the eastern end of the city is a beautiful park of 1400 acres, planted with trees and shrubs and intersected with drives and walks.

CONNOR TO SHY CASTER INTO SENATORIAL RING

Lieutenant Governor And Chairman Of State Central Committee Is Looking Over Broken Battle Lines in Milwaukee.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., April 13.—W. D. Connor of Marshfield, lieutenant governor and chairman of the State Central committee, is expected to arrive in Milwaukee this afternoon to look over political conditions in this county following the rather disastrous result of the recent election to the republican party organization.

It is thought by his friends that Mr. Connor will make the formal announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate while in this city. It is known that considerable preliminary work on his behalf has already been done.

The outlook for a most interesting senatorial contest both at the September preliminary and at the subsequent session of the legislature are bright. It is believed that the contest between Isaac Stephenson from Marshfield, W. D. Connor of Marshfield, P. A. Cook of Neenah, W. H. Hatten of New London and Francis E. McGovern of Milwaukee will overshadow in popular interest next fall the presidential and the state and county contest.

DAVIDSON WOULD BE GOVERNOR AGAIN; TO ANNOUNCE IT SOON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., April 13.—It can be announced on excellent authority that Governor Davidson has decided to again be a candidate for governor, but that he will not be a candidate for United States senator. Governor Davidson has been overwhelmed with letters urging him to be a candidate for United States senator but it is known to his closest friends that he will decline to enter the race. Letters endorsing his administration have also been received in large numbers and announcement of his candidacy for governor will be forthcoming very soon.

NOW IS TIME TO PREPARE LAWNS

BEST MIXTURE OF GRASS SEED
FOR LAWNS.

EASILY GROWN ANNUALS

Fruit is of Great Value in Maintaining Healthy Condition of the Body.

As spring becomes more advanced the thoughts of those who have any available space turn to the planting of gardens and the care of the lawn. Appended are some directions from the National Council of Horticulture which gives some valuable advice to those who intend to put forth efforts in this direction.

Great care should be taken by the gardener with his lawn. It is the canvas upon which he will paint his flowered pictures and landscape effects. To be successful he must prepare his canvas well.

The first thing is to grade the ground, smoothing rough surfaces, making proper level stretches and gentle slopes. If possible the lawn should slope from the house. The plant to grow between shrubs along a fence.

The Dietetic Value of Fruit. A place in his garden should be found by every gardener, whether a beginner or a veteran, for a few fruit trees, or many if he has the room. Fruit is as valuable on the table as vegetables, and as necessary to good health. Fruit contains nourishment, and is itself a medicine, keeping the system in order, besides being the foundation for the most delicious desserts.

All our fruit contains a large amount of water, sugar, either grape or fruit sugar-free organic acids, protein or albuminoids, which are equivalent to the white of an egg in food value; pectoses, the substance which gives firmness to fruit, the same substance which is found in the crust of bread; cellulose, of which the cell walls are formed, and a small percentage of mineral salts. Different fruits of course vary greatly in food values. Dried fruits have a larger percentage of nutriment than fresh fruit, because of the concentration due to the evaporation process.

Fruit juice consists mostly of water, but it is in its most delightful and refreshing form. The acids are just what the system needs to invigorate it. Malle acid which is found in apples is a good germicide. If fruit is not high in property to the food value of the purchase. Food in the form of fruit is no more costly than nourishment in meat and bread.

EVANGELISTS CLOSE
THE SERVICES HERE

Cargill Methodist Church Was Crowded Afternoon and Evening—Attracted Cards and a Strong Drink.

Great crowds visited the Cargill Methodist church yesterday to hear the evangelists whose meetings came to a close last evening. The morning service was one of deep and touching interest. Mr. Hart spoke on "Godliness Profiteth to This Life and the Life to Come."

In the afternoon, at the men's meeting, the Y. M. C. A. quartet very beautifully rendered two selections, and Mr. Magan's solo, "Toll Mother, 'Tis There," was sung with great effect.

The sermon of Mr. Hart was on Prov. 11:15—"He that pursueth evil doeth it to his own death." Manhood is God's best creation but men can think the lowest. Plant wheat and reap wheat; plant cards and reap gamblers. One night of sin sows seed of death. He that pursueth drink doeth it to his own destruction. He doeth it to his own destruction. The sin of drinking. The mortality of drink is five hundred per cent greater than that of total abstinence. The amount of nourishment in seven hundred gallons of beer only equals a pound of beefsteak. Jesus Christ is the drunkard's only hope. He that pursueth licentiousness doeth it to his own death. This has three sources—bad thoughts, bad habits, and bad company. Fifty-three (one of obscure literature was captured in five months by the Society of Suppression of Vice, Cut out everything; no gentleman sweats nor will he tell vulgar stories connected with a woman. Whiskey, opium, morphine and tobacco are doing their deadly work, but the most awful is impurity. God's way of pure, true marriage between man and woman is the best way. He pleaded for the single standard of purity. Men have no right to expect their wives and sisters to be what they are not.

He that pursueth indolence doeth it to his own death. Indolence wrecks home, community and individual lives. Anybody can go with the crowd, but it takes manhood to be a Christian.

In the evening Mr. Hart gave one of his most solemn messages, on "The Sin Against the Holy Ghost." Without the Holy Ghost nothing can be left in sin. But man can snap the tender cords of the Holy Ghost. Nothing this side of hell is so bad. The apostle of the testimony of the Bible, of nature and of experience. A man who sins against the Holy Ghost is without feeling. He is left without desire. A man can harden his heart until he cannot believe. He will do suddenly with no time to repent. He endured these points with illustrations one of which was the death of the noted Robert Rogers. The biggest sin is to refuse to yield to Jesus Christ. The sin against the Holy Spirit is a conscious, determined, prolonged rejection of Jesus Christ as a personal Savior.

At the close many came to the altar for salvation.

PECULIAR WORDING
FOR REGULATIONS

If Janesville Has a City Marshal Council Failed to Designate Him as Such.

One of the city officials has found a peculiar circumstance in the rules and regulations of the police department, drawn up by former Chief of Police W. H. Appleby, which were approved by the council. In these rules which were carefully compiled and then adopted by the council at a regular session the word city marshal does not appear, but the head of the police department is referred to as Chief of Police. In view of the fact that some of the aldermen, who are anxious to involve the city in an expensive lawsuit to test the wording of the state law which refers to the election of a chief of police in cities of the second and third class are the same aldermen who adopted the rules for governing the police department, in which the word marshal was left out and the word chief substituted, it seems a peculiar condition of affairs and shows on the face of it that it is not on a question of what the law means that the fight is being made but for purely personal reasons. These aldermen deplore the existing condition of affairs and say that for the good discipline of the police department the present dispute should be ended and that the city not be forced into an expensive lawsuit. It is certain that if the council names someone else than Appleby marshal, there will be a fight to the finish through all the courts which will take time and cost the city and the taxpayers money. Meanwhile their will be a question of authority in the police department which may cause considerable trouble before the matter is settled in the courts. Chief Appleby stated this morning that he was sorry there was a fight over his election, that he believed he had been elected under the law as it exists and that he would remain in office until the courts decided he had no right there.

Meanwhile their will be a question of authority in the police department which may cause considerable trouble before the matter is settled in the courts. Chief Appleby stated this morning that he was sorry there was a fight over his election, that he believed he had been elected under the law as it exists and that he would remain in office until the courts decided he had no right there.

One of the city officials has found a peculiar circumstance in the rules and regulations of the police department, drawn up by former Chief of Police W. H. Appleby, which were approved by the council. In these rules which were carefully compiled and then adopted by the council at a regular session the word city marshal does not appear, but the head of the police department is referred to as Chief of Police. In view of the fact that some of the aldermen, who are anxious to involve the city in an expensive lawsuit to test the wording of the state law which refers to the election of a chief of police in cities of the second and third class are the same aldermen who adopted the rules for governing the police department, in which the word marshal was left out and the word chief substituted, it seems a peculiar condition of affairs and shows on the face of it that it is not on a question of what the law means that the fight is being made but for purely personal reasons. These aldermen deplore the existing condition of affairs and say that for the good discipline of the police department the present dispute should be ended and that the city not be forced into an expensive lawsuit. It is certain that if the council names someone else than Appleby marshal, there will be a fight to the finish through all the courts which will take time and cost the city and the taxpayers money. FLEET IS ON ITS WAY TO SAN DIEGO

PREPARATIONS MADE TO WELCOME IT TO THAT CITY.

FOUR DAYS OF PLEASURE

Illuminations, Balls, Parades and Other Features—Golden Key and Sword for Admiral Evans.

San Diego, Cal., Apr. 13.—The Atlantic fleet was reported Sunday night by wireless as well on its way to San Diego, and will be in position to anchor at one o'clock on next Tuesday. The ships will be in division formation, or four lines of four vessels each off Coronado beach.

The last details of the welcoming ceremonies in this, the first home port to be touched by the fleet, have been completed. The ships will remain here four days before resuming the journey up the coast. Upon casting anchor Tuesday afternoon the flagship Connecticut will be visited by Mayor Forward of San Diego and by Chairman William C. Layton of the local fleet reception committee. They will extend to Rear Admiral Thomas a formal greeting and will submit to him for approval the detailed program of the four days' stay.

Illumination Tuesday Night. Tuesday evening red signal fires along the beach will burn a welcome to the ships and in return the men-of-war will be illuminated by thousands of incandescent bulbs, from eight to eleven p. m. A searchlight drill will add to the evening spectacle. A banquet to the flag and commanding officers at the Hotel Del Coronado Tuesday night will round out the first day's events.

On Wednesday, April 15, the full fleet brigade of nearly 5,000 men will be landed from the ships at noon and at two p. m. will begin a parade through the principal streets to the city park, where formal exercises of welcome will be held. Here Gov. J. N. Gillett of California and Mayor Forward of San Diego will voice the greetings of the commonwealth and municipality. Admiral Thomas will be asked to accept in behalf of himself and the officers and men of the fleet the freedom of the city. He also will be presented with a silver mounted cut glass buffet service as a token of appreciation from the residents of this city.

Key and Sword for Evans. Admiral Thomas will accept in trust for Admiral Evans a golden key to the city presented by the citizens, and a sword given by the G. A. R. It is expected that the admiral will make a few remarks. The city and the fleet will be illuminated Wednesday night and there will also, on this evening, be a ball at the Hotel Del Coronado in honor of Admiral Thomas and the officers of the fleet. Admirals Sperry and Emory will be presented with gold medals in commemoration of this visit.

On Thursday there will be a picnic in the country for officers and boat races for the men. Thursday night there will be an elaborate display of fireworks from a barge anchored in the bay. Friday forenoon and afternoon the enlisted men will be given the freedom of the city and all sorts of entertainments have been planned for them. Practically all the theaters will open their doors to the men in uniform. There will be baseball matches, a wild west show and other events. Friday night a ball to the junior officers will mark the close of the fleet's visit, the ships getting under way at six a. m. on Saturday for San Pedro.

Steamer and Cruiser Collide. Rio Janeiro, April 13.—The British steamer Voltairre, while leaving the port of Santos Sunday, collided with the French cruiser Republique, causing considerable damage. The Voltairre continued on her voyage without stopping. There was no loss of life.

CALLS OUT ENTIRE MILITIA

GOVERNOR SENDS ALL STATE TROOPS TO PENSACOLA.

Company Will Undertake to Run Cars and Trouble with Strikers Is Expected.

Jacksonville, Fla., Apr. 13.—Gov. Broward Sunday ordered every command of the state militia to proceed at once to Pensacola. The soundings of the riot call summoning the three companies here to quarters gave rise to a report that a serious strike riot was in progress at Pensacola, but this proved to be a mistake, later advices showing that the electric company had decided to start cars on its lines Monday and that the troops had been called out as a measure of precaution, as further trouble is feared.

The following order was received into Sunday afternoon from Adjt. Gen. Clifford R. Foster from Tallahassee: "Assemble companies A, D, and F, immediately and proceed by afternoon train to Pensacola, there reporting to Col. Loftis on arrival. Take every available man; heavy marching order; 20 rounds multiple ball cartridges per man. Commutation of railroads allowed for trip and if possible take field ranges. Sound general alarm so as to get men out quickly, and take as many as possible."

Upon receipt of this message the fire whistle sounded the riot call and military men, policemen, deputy sheriffs and special officers rushed to their quarters. At 6:30 o'clock 170 men and the galling gun detachment left for Pensacola.

A special from Live Oak stated that the St. Lawrence guards, the Tallahassee, Apalachicola and other companies, had proceeded to Pensacola on the morning train.

Pensacola, Fla., Apr. 13.—With the exception of a monster mass meeting of all organized laboring men of Pensacola, there were no developments in the strike situation here Sunday. Mayor C. C. Goodwin early in the day issued a proclamation putting the curfew law in effect and all residents, excepting officers actually on duty, must be off the streets by ten o'clock, or else be arrested. Two additional military companies arrived during the day.

CONGRESS MAY QUIT MAY 9. Representative Watson of Indiana Predicts Early Adjournment.

Washington, Apr. 13.—That the present session of congress will adjourn on or about Saturday, May 9, was the prediction Sunday night of Representative James H. Watson of Indiana, Republican "whip" of the house. Mr. Watson bases this prediction upon information he has gathered as the result of a careful survey of the situation in the two houses of congress.

During the past few days Mr. Watson has conferred with the leaders at both ends of the capital in regard to adjournment, and all of them are anxious for an early date. He thinks there is ample time between now and May 9 for the completion of the legislative program. "The principal measures in the house which remain to be disposed of are the naval appropriation bill, the sundry civil appropriation bill, the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, the military academy bill and the Aldrich currency measure."

Alleged Murderer Caught. Huntington, Ind., Apr. 13.—The police of Calumet Manor, N. Y., have captured a man long wanted in New York for the murder of Millionaire Roschenauer. Frank Monato appeared here several weeks ago and caused his wife to be arrested for living with an Italian laborer, Mario Dolceta. In retaliation Monato's wife said that he was wanted for murder and the police in New York were notified.

Bank Cashier Kills Self. Spokane, Wash., Apr. 13.—George W. Thomas, cashier of the First State bank of Newport, Wash., committed suicide at the Colonial hotel in this city by taking strychnine. Domestic troubles and failing health are said to have prompted the act.

SYSTEM FROM SEA TO SEA

LAST LINK IN HARRIMAN'S BIG CHAIN ALMOST DONE.

Opening of Illinois Central's Birmingham Division April 19 Completes Trans-Continental Line.

Birmingham, Ala., Apr. 13.—The official announcement by the Illinois Central that the new Birmingham division will be opened for traffic April 19 calls attention to the completion of the link in the great Harriman trans-continental route, for by controlling the Union Pacific, Illinois Central and Central of Georgia, this system will extend from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

In addition to supplying the last link in this chain, the opening of the Haleyville branch will give the Illinois Central an inlet to the great coal and iron fields of Alabama with their immense annual tonnage.

The Central of Georgia terminals here connect with those of the Illinois Central, thus giving a direct connection from all Illinois Central points with the sea at Savannah over the Central of Georgia. Connections of the Illinois Central with the Union Pacific thus give a complete system from one ocean to the other. The connection is expected to benefit the southern states and to increase Savannah's importance as a seaport, for in addition to making it the terminal for much of Alabama's coal and iron, it will receive much of the grain and other traffic of the Mississippi valley.

The Mobile & Ohio will open its new Birmingham branch on April 20 and present plans contemplate having the first trains over both lines reach Birmingham the same day. To this end the commercial organizations of Birmingham have planned an elaborate reception.

NEW BRITISH CABINET. Premier Asquith Names Men Who Will Manage the Empire.

Asquith, prime minister and first lord of the treasury; David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer; Lord Tweedmouth, president of the council; Earl of Crowe, secretary of state for the colonies; Reginald McKenna, first lord of the admiralty; Winston Spencer Churchill, president of the board of trade; Walter Runciman, president of the board of education.

We Will Buy

For You a Can of Van Camp's Tomorrow

Send the coupon below to your grocer tomorrow. He will send you a ten-cent can of Van Camp's. We will pay the grocer ourselves for it. Please let us show you, at our expense, how good baked beans can be.

For weeks, in these columns, we have told you how good are Van Camp's Pork and Beans.

But we must do more. For your good and ours, we must get you all to try them. So we are going to let the beans themselves tell you their story tomorrow.

It's our treat. Please serve, with our compliments, one 10-cent can. Then hear what your people say.

Let them compare ours with home-baked beans—compare them with other brands. Then let your folks decide what beans you'll serve next.

The question of beans is important. For beans are Nature's choicest food when they are right.

They are 23% nitrogenous—57% nutriment. They supply a food value equal to meat, yet they cost but a fraction as much.

They are appetizing and hearty; all people like them. They should be a daily dish—not an occasional.

But the trouble is this: Home-baked beans are heavy, and hard to digest, for lack of sufficient heat. Your ovens are not hot enough to break down the fibre—to separate the atoms so the digestive juices can get to them.

The result is, the beans ferment and form gas.

Another trouble is this: Home-baked beans are mushy because they are broken. People prefer beans whole.

They are baked in dry heat, so the top beans are crisped. The middle beans are not even half baked.

That's why you serve beans so rarely.

Our ovens are heated to 245 degrees, and we bake for ninety minutes. Every atom is made digestible.

We bake in live steam, so no beans are browned, none are broken. They are baked until they are meaty, yet they are nutty because they are whole.

Then we bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together, and get a delicious blend.

That is why Van Camp's are so different. We have spent 47 years in learning how to prepare them. You will eat more beans when you learn how good they can be.

One Ten-Cent Can is Free

Van Camp's Pork and Beans Baked with Tomato Sauce

Please don't neglect this offer, for it will not appear again. Let the beans themselves, for your own sake, tell how good they are. You will never again bake beans at home. You will not accept other brands.

The beans that we use cost us $2.10 per bushel. Yet beans are sold as low as 30 cents.

But we use only Michigan beans, and the very cream of the crop. We have them picked over by hand so we get only the whitest, the plumpest, the fullest-grown. All others are discarded.

For our sauce, we use only whole tomatoes, ripened on the vines. They are picked when the juice fairly sparkles.

Much sauce is made from tomatoes picked green and ripened in shipment. Much is made of scraps from a canning factory. We could buy such sauce, ready-made, for exactly one-fifth that we spend to make ours.

But it would lack our richness, our savor, our sparkling zest which Nature alone can give.

That is why baked beans differ so, and why some brands sell for less. But the best beans are cheap enough. The better your people like beans the more they will eat. And the more you will save on your meat bills.

Every can of Van Camp's means a meal ready to serve. Heat the can in hot water, then open. That's all. The beans will be just as fresh and savory as when they came from our ovens.

Be sure to get a can tomorrow, and use this coupon to pay for it. The beans themselves will do more to convince you than anything we can say. But don't think that other ready-baked beans are anywhere near like Van Camp's. They are not.

Cut Out This Coupon

Take this or send it to your grocer tomorrow, and he will accept it in payment for a ten-cent can of Van Camp's Pork and Beans. No family, however, may present more than one coupon.

If your grocer is out of Van Camp's, ask him to get them. In each case the coupon will be good at any time within one week from April 13th. He can get Van Camp's from his wholesaler.

To All Grocers: Promptly mail to us all these coupons which you redeem for Van Camp's Pork and Beans, writing us a letter to that effect on your business paper with your full name and exact address, and we will remit you ten cents for each. You make your full profit on every sale, for the coupons are redeemed in cash.

Not Drifting

There is such a thing as drifting in business and professional life. Just looking along day by day, taking things as they come. Such a course does not get a man anywhere except nearer to the workhouse. Dr. Richards in his Dental work is not a drifter.

He has a definite Policy.
He works towards an end.
That end is
To please his every patient just a little better than his competitors.
Does this policy win?
The facts are, his Dental practice has grown during the last seven years until he has by far the largest Dental business in Janesville.
Good work will win out.
Vigilant effort to avoid hurting also wins out.
Reasonable prices ought to appeal to your better judgment also.
Try him for your next Dental work, and you too will be convinced that he makes good.

Beer-Wagon Runaway: Frightened by small boys on South Main street, Saturday afternoon, the horse drawing the Schlitz Brewing Co. wagon gave a jump and broke the harness bridle, after that nothing could stop the crazed beast until the driver grounded the wagon with a jerk against the curb at the South Second street intersection. The hills were broken, but otherwise no damage was done.

Gum Versus the Rag.

An exchange thinks $60,000,000 spent on chewing gum annually is a large sum to be wasted on a treadmill unattended to any productive machinery. But when a woman is chewing gum she finds it difficult to talk, and that's a blessing not to be scorned.—Washington Post.

AS USUAL THE OLD WEAPON WAS LOADED

Clay Marble Which Had Been Substituted for Shot Struck Charlie

Henson in Right Arm.

While playing about a barn in the rear of the Frank Elford home at the corner of North Jackson and Racine streets, about half past four o'clock Saturday afternoon, eleven year old Price James found an old .20 gauge shot-gun which looked as if it had been no service since the war. Fifteen year old Charlie Henson was standing out in the yard several yards distant from the barn with his back turned and the James boy, bringing the trophy to the door in the second story playfully pointed the weapon at Henson and pulled the trigger. As usual, the gun was loaded, and the missile, which in this instance happened to be a clay marble which had been substituted in the cartridge for a load of shot, struck the Henson boy's right forearm, plunging through the flesh to the bone and glancing off to lodge between the inner lining and cloth of his coat. Dr. R. W. Edden, failing to discover the clay bullet by probing, used the X-ray machine with out success. The final lodging place of the marble was not discovered until yesterday. Unless complications set in, the Henson boy will recover the full use of the injured member.

OLD SORES FED AND BY IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

If Old Sores were due to outside influences, or if the cause was confined strictly to the diseased flesh around the ulcer, then external treatment and simple cleanliness would cure them. But the trouble is in the blood, which has become unhealthy and diseased, and keeps the sore open by continually discharging into it the impurities and poisons with which the circulation is filled. This poisonous condition of the blood may be the result of some constitutional trouble; the effect of a long spell of sickness, or because the natural refuse of the body, which should pass off through the proper avenues, has been left in the system and absorbed into the blood. Again, the cause may be hereditary; but it does not matter how the poison becomes entrenched in the blood, the fact that the sore will not heal is evidence of a deep underlying cause. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., may cause the place to heal over temporarily, but the blood is not made any purer by such treatment, and soon the old inflammation and discharge will return and the sore be as bad or worse than before. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, cleanses and purifies the blood, and makes a permanent cure. S. S. S. enriches and freshens the circulation so that instead of discharging unhealthy matter into the place, it carries rich, tissue-building, flesh-healing blood to the diseased parts and in every way assists in a natural cure of the sore. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

GOVERNOR OF GALICIA BLAIN.

Count Potocki of Austria Assassinated by Ruthenian Student.

Lemberg, Austria Hungary, Apr. 13.—Count Andreas Potocki, governor of the Austrian Polish province of Galicia, was assassinated Sunday afternoon by a Ruthenian student, Mironas Biczynski, while giving an audience to a delegation of students. The assassin fired three shots from a revolver, all of which took effect. The governor died soon afterwards, but first asked his secretary to inform his majesty at once. "Tell him," said the dying man, "I was his most faithful servant."

The assassin did not resist arrest. When led through the governor's antechamber he said to the Ruthenian policeman who was waiting for an audience: "I have done this for you."

The assassin's brother, who had been informed of the plan to kill the governor, committed suicide shortly before the murder. The affair has caused a great sensation throughout the monarchy. The Potocki family is among the most prominent aristocrats of Polish blood. Many Ruthenians have been arrested, but none as yet has been implicated in the assassination. The assassin declares that he thought it his duty to revenge the Poles for the oppression by Potocki's government.

LIEUT. TOTTON IS DEAD.

Former Army Officer and Prophet Passes Away.

Milford, Conn., Apr. 13.—Lieut. Charles A. L. Totton, United States army, retired, and former Yale professor, died at his home here Sunday. Lieut. Totton was widely known because of mathematical deductions upon which he based prophetic interpretations of Scriptures, most of them being as to the coming of the end of the world. He was a native of New Haven, Conn., and in his fifty-seventh year. He was a graduate of Trinity college and West Point.

Taft Back in Washington.

Washington, Apr. 13.—Secretary of War Taft returned here Sunday after an absence of about ten days in the west, where he made a number of addresses. It is the secretary's intention to remain in Washington until next Saturday, when he will go to New York city to deliver an address before the Sphinx club.

Two Die in Love Tragedy.

Chicago, Apr. 13.—Determined that not even death should separate him from the girl who, in far away Bohemia had promised to become his wife, Joseph Khrushchak shot and killed her Sunday night at Trumbull avenue and West Twenty-fifth street, and then sent a bullet into his own brain.

A Real One.

"My Uncle Hiram," remarked little Henry, "says the only yellow pill he has any dread of is the newswatch which always wakes him up at six o'clock 'ter, an' spiles his mornin' nap."

THE CAPTAIN OF the KANSAS

By LOUIS TRACY.

Author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY EDWARD J. CLODE

"Will you tell her how much I am obliged to her for her kind thought? But, you see, it cannot be permitted. Please say that I hope to join her in the salon in a quarter of an hour. My work is nearly ended. I am sure you will make her understand that this is not a place for a woman."

Again he swept the row of silent bodies with a comprehensive hand. Yet the trivial thought intruded itself on the sailor that this elegant old Spaniard delegated the task of explanation to him solely because he did not wish to appear before Miss Maxwell in a somewhat dejected state. He dismissed the notion at once.

"How many?" he asked, glancing at the quiet forms which bore no hands.

"Eleven now. By the way, just one word. What chance have we?" Christobal put the concluding sentence in French.

Courtenay answered in the same language: "A very poor one. But I shall come to the sailor and warn you. That will be only fair, don't you think?"

"Most certainly. Well, I may as well blurt here," and the doctor signed to his helpers to lift the next sufferer on to the table.

Courtenay returned to the stairway. At the top stood Elsie, looking eagerly for his reappearance. A sense of unutterable anguish shook him for a second as he saw the sweet face, flushed with life and beauty, gazing down at him. How monstrous it was to think of such a fair woman being battered out of recognition against the rocks! He bit his lip savagely, and it is to be feared the words he swallowed were not those of supplication. But his eyes were calm and his voice well under control when he said:

"Mr. Christobal is captain below there, Miss Maxwell, and he absolutely voices your presence. He was exceedingly distressed at being compelled to send you such a message. However, he will soon explain matters to you in person, as he is coming up almost at once."

Elsie was disappointed. She dreaded the return to the salon, with its queerly assorted company. When she quitted them they were in a state of indescribable distress. Gray and the Englishman were helping the chief steward to adjust his belt, but Isabel was in a frenzy of despair, her maid had fainted, De Polinski and the Spaniards were muttering alternate appeals to the sailors and on the utter abandonment, and Mrs. Somerville was almost unconscious, while her husband knelt by her side and wrung his hands in silent misery. Anything was better than to go back to that awful assembly, yet she choked down a protest and said quietly:

"I am ready. I am afraid I have been a bother to you, Captain Courtenay."

"Say, rather, you have given me hope. I think heaven has work for you to do in the world. Let me go out first. Never mind Joey. He can struggle along himself. Steady now. Head down and lean well against the wall."

Elsie found, to her amazement, that there was less sense of danger in facing the wind than in being driven along before it. Moreover, she had greater confidence during this second transit over the exposed portion of the deck. She felt Courtenay dragging her on irresistibly until they gained the lee of the smoking room. He let her rest there beneath the ladder leading to the bridge. Then a strange revulsion of feeling came to him. He experienced an overwhelming desire not to be parted from her. He had a sickening fear that he might never see her again, so he shouted very close to her cheek:

"Would you like to sit in my cabin a little while if I bring Miss Baring?"

"She thought that would be splendid. Courtenay, if any one would succeed in calming Isabel, in order to make herself heard she in turn had to put her lips close to Courtenay's face."

"Yes," she cried; "I shall be only too pleased. But be patient with her. She is very frightened."

"There is no accounting for the workings of a man's mind. Courtenay, at no time a lady's man, most certainly had other matters to attend to just then. Yet here he was thinking only of a woman's comfort. His absent forebodings were banished by a rush of abashed delight at the thought that he would have an opportunity of speaking to her occasionally. What a brave girl she was! What a wife for a sailor! In truth, these were mad notions that justified in his brain when his life and hers were not worth an hour's purchase. He drew her to the foot of the ladder.

"Run ahead, Joey!" he cried. The dog, a wild little figure, leaping forward at a ridiculous angle against the tearing wind, obeyed instantly. "Now, you," he said to Elsie, "but wait until I pass you at the top."

Though her skirts were troublesome, she managed the ascent. Then she was taken off her feet again and hardly knew where she was until she found herself in the haven of Courtenay's cabin. Joey was glad to be there too. He shook himself nobly in his heavy coat.

"You won't mind if I fasten the door on you?" And the captain so far forgot his anxiety as to smile.

"No, indeed." And she smiled in response.

"Very well. I shall bring Miss Baring in about five minutes. You won't stir till we come?"

"What—faced that gale without you?" She almost laughed at the idea. He bolted the door and ran into the chart house to tap the barometer. It moved appreciably. It was rising! Ah, if only the wind moderated he could save the Kansas yet! He glanced at the compass; still the same course—not a fraction of a point gained to the north. That was bad. The ship was already within the danger zone. Pray heaven for a falling wind or even a change to the southward! Still, it was in an altogether more cheerful mood that he regained the promenade deck and made his way toward the salon.

He was in the very act of entering the doorway when a shudder ran through the ship, and she lifted slightly. Clinging to a rail, he waited, right as a statue. A second time the great steel hull shook, but much more violently. Then the Kansas ran her nose into a shoal, swung round broadside to the sea, lifted again, struck heavily and listed to port.

Courtenay was on the starboard side. He heard a yell of dismay from the men attending to the boats. Scrambling came from the salon. The sea leaped triumphantly over the rails and nearly smothered him with its drenching spray. No this was the end? It had come all too soon. And what a place for the ship to be cast away—twenty miles from the nearest land, in the midst of a sea where no boat could live! God help them all!

CHAPTER V.

COURTENAY waited for the landing of plates, the tearing of a number of starch steel ribs and crossbones, which would sound the knell of the ship's last moments. But the Kansas seemed to be in no hurry to fall in pieces. She strained and groaned and shook violently when a wave pounded her. Otherwise she lay there like a beaten thing, oddly resembling the living but almost unconscious men stretched on the mattresses in the forward salon.

Courtenay did not experience the least fear of death. Emotion of any sort was already dead in him. He found himself wondering if an unexpected strong current setting to the southeast had not upset his reckoning. If there were any broken timbers among the occupants of the salon, if Elsie had been injured by being thrown down into his cabin. He looked at his watch. It was past 11. In four hours there would be dawn. Dawn! In an many minutes he might see the day that is overhanging. Ah, perhaps not even four minutes! The Kansas, with a silver, lifted to the embrace of a heavy sea, lurched to port and settled herself more comfortably. The deck heaved an easier gait. Now it was possible to walk. There were no rocks here, at any rate. Courtenay at once jumped to the conclusion that the powerful current whose existence he suspected had cut out for itself a deep water channel toward the land and the ship had struck on the sill of its backwash. Anyhow, the Kansas was still living. The lights were all burning steadily. He could detect the rhythmic throbs of the donkey engine. He felt like the faint beat of a pulse. In her new position the ship presented less of a solid wall to the onslaught of the sea. The tumultuous waves began to race past without breaking so heroically. Had she started her plates? Were the holds and engine room full of water? If so, Walker and his helpers were already drowning beneath his feet. And when next she moved the vessel might slip away into the depths.

A man rushed by, or tried to do so. Courtenay recognized him as a leading stoker who had temporary charge of the donkey boiler and seized him wrathfully, his eyes ablaze.

"Go back!" he roared.

"Seize! The ship is lost!"

"Go back and await my orders!" He could have strangled the fugitive in his sudden rage. The dreamer endeavored to grasp his readiness to obey. Courtenay relaxed his grip, and for a time at least one member of the crew stuck to his post, fearing the mad captain more than death.

A mob of stewards and kitchen hands came in a torrent up the salon stairs. Courtenay met them, a terrified figure, and thrust a revolver in their faces.

"Back," he shouted, "or some of you will die here!"

"Even in their frenzy they believed him. The foremost slunk away and fought in a new terror with those who would urge them on. Gray, bleeding from a cut across the forehead, knocked down a man who brutally tore Isabel out of his path. Tollenbach, a revolver in each hand, set his back against the corner of the salon at the foot of the stairs.

"I'm with you, captain!" he yelled. Courtenay saw that he had conquered them for the instant. He raised his hand.

"Behave like men!" he cried. "You can't do no good by crowding the deck. I am going to the bridge to see if it is possible to lower the boats. Each boat's crew will be mustered in turn, passengers and men alike. If you are cowards now you will throw away what chance there is of saving your lives."

A revolver backed twice somewhere on deck. A bullet smashed one of the windows of the music room and lodged in a panel behind Courtenay. They all heard the reports, but the captain promptly turned "he incident to no advantage."

"You see we mean to maintain order," he said. "Mr. Malcolm, take care that every one has a life belt."

A sort of cheer came from the men. Who could fail to believe in a leader so cool and resourceful? He ran out into the darkness to discover the cause of the shooting. A number of sailors and firemen were striving to launch a boat. There was a struggle going on. He could not distinguish friend from foe in the melee, but he threw himself into it fearlessly.

"You look!" he shouted. "You may die soon enough without killing each other. Make way there! Ah, would you?" He caught the gleam of an up-lifted knife and struck savagely at the face of the man who had used it. The butt of the revolver caught the sailor on the temple. He went down like a stone. Courtenay stumbled over another prostrate body. It was Mr. Boyle striving to rise. Their eyes met in the gloom. Courtenay stopped and awaiting the other clear of the light, for the second and third officers were using their fists, and Walker even in the hurry of his ascent from the storeroom had not let go of a spanner. The yells and curses, the trappings of his forms, everything in the light, the roaring of the gale and the incessant crash of heavy spray made up a ghastly pandemonium. It was an orgy of terror, of wild abandon, of hopeless striving on the edge of the pit, a stupid madness at the best, as the ship's lifeboats on the port side were on the spar deck. In their panic the men were endeavoring to lower a dingy. Yet Courtenay saw that discipline was regaining its influence. He thought to inspire confidence and stop useless savagery by a sharp command.

"All hands follow me to starboard!" The struggle ceased instantly. The captain's order seemed to imply some new scheme. Men who a moment ago would have killed any one who sought to restrain them from clearing the boat's falls now raced pell-mell after their officers. No heed was paid to those who lay on the deck wounded or senseless. Herein alone did these children of nature differ from wolves, and wolves have the excuse of three hunger when they devour their disabled fellows.

Still carrying Boyle, Courtenay led the confused horde through a gangway to the higher side of the deck. "Swing those boats back to the spar deck!" he said. "Get falls and tackle ready to lift them to port. Don't lose your heads, men. You will all be clear of the ship in ten minutes if you do as you are told."

A Language Struggle.

Meeting a blank face, he tried French and then German, but in vain. A little out of temper, he said: "Why don't you speak English?" "I do, sir," was the reply.—Travel.
